EQUITY: TECHNOLOGY

Poised to benefit from US AIDC expansion

3Q26F preview: we expect EBIT to stay resilient on ESS, AMPC and one-off income

Growing exposure to AIDC-related batteries; maintain Buy

We reiterate Buy on Samsung SDI (SDI) as its energy storage system (ESS), battery backup unit (BBU) and uninterrupted power supply (UPS) batteries combined – whose demand is associated with the AIDC expansion – should post 40%/65% growth (y-y) in 2026/27F revenue (52% representation in 2027F revenue) and 150%/95% growth (y-y) in 2026/27F EBIT (57% representation in 2027F EBIT). In the US, SDI plans to expand its ESS battery capacities to ~20/33GWh by 2026/27F (2025: 8GWh) based on contracts signed with large US ESS/energy developers which we estimate can exceed KRW6.5tn in 2027-29F. SDI should be flexible in producing NCA or LFP batteries for ESS – from 2H26F – with a plan to use more Korea LFP cathodes to remain eligible for 45x US subsidy. Globally, Jan-Aug electric vehicle/PHEV sales were up 4.0% (y-y) to 13.4mn units, with US/China sales declining by 21%/12% y-y, while Europe saw shipments rise 29% y-y. For 3Q26F, we have baked in a resilient EBIT on ESS, AMPC and one-off income (3Q26F EBIT of KRW216bn, up 6% q-q). SDI trades at a 2027F EV/EBITDA of 11.9x, and P/BV of 1.7x (ROE: 4.7%).

Catalysts: (1) US ESS battery revenue and EBIT growth; (2) new ESS contract win; (3) remaining Samsung Display stake sale

We see SDI's upside catalysts as: (1) 4Q26E guidance on US ESS shipments from the Indiana LFP line; (2) signing of a new contract with an ESS supplier for the US; (3) disposal of the remaining 10.2% Samsung Display (unlisted) stake; (4) news flow on solid-state customer qualification for humanoid robots ahead of the 2H27E target. Downside risks may stem from: (1) a delayed recovery of EV battery shipments for SDI; (2) losses widening for EV battery.

Valuation: Lower SOTP-based TP of KRW790,000, implying 41% upside

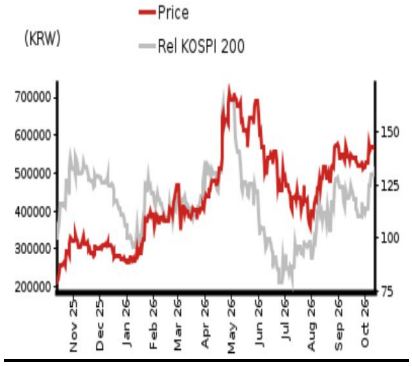

We lower our target price to KRW790,000 (from KRW900,000), valuing: (1) the large (EV/ESS) and small battery business segments at KRW56.9tn (previously: KRW67.6tn), assuming a WACC of 6.6% (previously: 6.1%); and (2) the electronic materials business at KRW2.0tn. The reduced target price reflects our battery valuation cut where we now assume a higher WACC of 6.6% given a higher risk free rate of 4% (previously: 2.8%). We lift 2026/27/28F net profit by 357%/55%/56% on account of more than KRW350bn in one-off income related to US tariff refund/customer compensation (2026) and an increase in US ESS shipments and AMPC tax credit assumptions (2027F/28F).

Company profile

Samsung SDI Co., Ltd. specializes in developing Lithium Ion Battery (LIB) technology. The company develops batteries for smartphones, energy storage systems, EV and solar panels. Samsung SDI also produces liquid crystal display (LCD) and OLED components and semiconductor process chemical.

Valuation Methodology

Our TP of KRW790,000 is based on our SOTP valuation, reflecting(1) the large (EV/ESS) and small battery business segments at KRW56.9tn; and (2) the electronic materials business at KRW2.0tn.

Risks that may impede the achievement of the target price

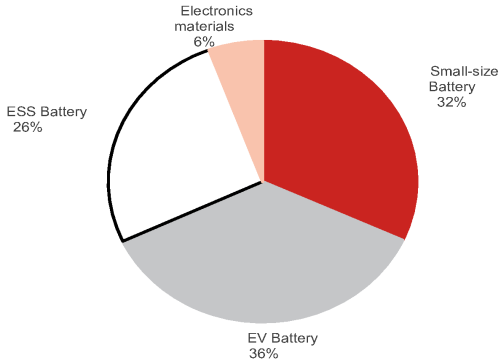

Downside risks may stem from 1) a delayed recovery of electric vehicle (EV) battery shipment for SDI; 2) losses widening for EV battery.

ESG

We believe Samsung SDI is focused on following ESG management. Samsung SDI is making efforts to reduce the negative environmental impact by applying stricter internal standards than legal standards during business activities. Samsung SDI established strict internal standards from product manufacturing process to waste management, and continues with its efforts to reduce environmental impacts accordingly. The company is promoting efficient management of water resources by recycling waste batteries, sorting and collecting wastewater from the battery cleaning process to reusing it as heavy water. In response to climate change, SDI is participating in the carbon emission trading system and disclose information through the Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP). SDI recently joined the Responsible Mining Initiative (RMI), an international organization for the ethical production and distribution of battery raw materials, and participated in the ‘Deep Seabed Mining’ Prevention Initiative (DSM)’ with BMW, Volvo, Google and others for the first time in the battery industry in promoting social value.
