September wholesale volume up 8% MoM, down 9% YoY

The China Passenger Car Association (CPCA) reported passenger vehicle wholesale volume of 2.55m units in September, up 8% MoM but down 9% YoY. Domestic wholesale volume came in at 1.6m units, up 11% MoM but down 28% YoY, with retail volume at 1.6m units, up 5% MoM but down 28% YoY. By powertrain, domestic EV volume fell 14% YoY at 1.1m units, while domestic ICE volume was down 47% YoY at 524k units. Export momentum continued at 917k units, up 3% MoM and 74% YoY, with EVs accounting for 61% of exports.

Wholesale EV penetration of 65%, up 12ppt YoY

NEV wholesale volume accelerated to 1.66m units in September, up 10% MoM and 11% YoY, lifting wholesale NEV penetration to a record 65%, up 12ppt YoY. Export strength was a key growth driver, with NEV exports rising 164% YoY to 558k units. Retail EV penetration also reached another high of 67%, up 9.1ppt YoY. By OEM, BYD delivered 455k units, up 5% MoM and 16% YoY, while Tesla delivered 95k units, a rise of 11% MoM and 5% YoY. Among EV startups, Nio reported sales of 37k units (up 4% MoM), XPeng delivered 41k units (up 4% MoM), while Li Auto shipped 32k units (down 16% MoM).

Mild discounts widening across mass-market and premium brands

UBS's transaction data showed a mild widening of retail pricing trends across mass-market domestic and foreign brands in September. For domestic OEMs, our transaction pricing data suggested an average 0.2ppt widening of discounts, with GAC Aion showing a larger discount of 0.7ppt MoM. Foreign brands recorded wider discounts overall, with the average discount widening 1.5ppt MoM. Audi stood out among foreign peers, with the average discount widening 5.1ppt MoM, likely reflecting the clearance of older model inventory. During September, Chinese brands achieved a market share of 78.2%, up 7.2ppt YoY, while European and Japanese brands recorded 8.3% and 6.6% market shares, down 4.2ppt YoY and 3.1ppt YoY, respectively.

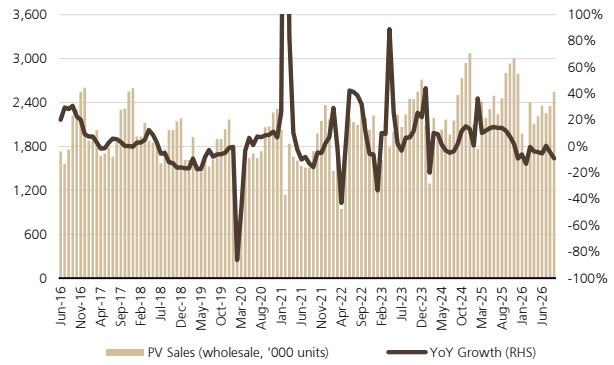

Stock implications

Chinese automakers remained under pressure in the past month, reflecting investor concerns about potential additional EU tariffs on PHEVs and a possible reduction in China's export VAT rebate. We believe these concerns are increasingly being priced in, while the recent clarification of VAT policy and potential progress in China-EU trade negotiations could help remove key overhangs. Looking ahead, we remain constructive as overseas sales continue to expand, which could support a valuation re-rating for industry leaders. Among our preferred picks, we believe BYD appears particularly well positioned given planned localised production in Hungary from end-2026, while CATL should benefit from rising BEV demand in Europe and other overseas markets. We continue to prefer BYD, CATL-A, Geely (all Buy rated), and remain cautious on XPeng, Seres and Xiaomi (all Neutral rated).

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

We use various valuation methodologies to value China's auto sector, including PE and EV/sales multiples, DCF and SOTP.

We believe risks to the traditional internal combustion engine (ICE) sector include: 1) a slowdown in economic growth that could alter consumer sentiment and weaken auto demand; 2) excessive capacity, which could cause oversupply, drive down utilisation rates and operating leverage, and possibly trigger a price war; 3) regulatory changes, which could influence auto demand positively or negatively.

Risks to the new-energy vehicle (NEV) sector include: 1) changes in the government's NEV sector policies; 2) a significant decline in NEV subsidies, which could result in the profit margins of automakers falling further than expected; 3) new entrants to the market, which could cause declines in companies' market shares; and 4) potential overcapacity in the NEV battery industry.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
