UnitedHealth: Strong 3Q from disciplined execution, modestly lowering PT to $500 reflecting lower multiple expansion

We remain Outperform on UNH and decrease our price target to $500 representing ~22% upside. We have updated our model which improved 2026 EPS from $20.11 to $20.50, but lowers 26-30 CAGR from 14.1% to 13.9% off this higher base.

Key takeaways - 1) Third guidance raise for the year. UNH is projecting 27% EPS growth this year (inline with our estimate). 2) MA margins have recovered faster than expected and are now projected at the top end of the 2-4% target margin range. 3) Optum Health also preformed better than expected in 3Q, but still has meaningful margin recovery left through 2028. 4) Medicaid performance was modestly better than expected and overall utilization appeared controlled and either stable or modestly down from elevated levels.

We are Outperform on UNH driven by 1) a continued sector recovery and disciplined pricing in MA; 2) 2027 margin improvement in Optum Health and Medicaid 3) valuations which are below our LT ranges for UNH; and 4) upside from potential AI growth in Optum Insight and VBC adoption in non-MA segments for Optum Health.

We are lowering our price target to $500 to reflect improved EPS estimates in 2027 and 2028, but headwinds to multiple expansion from current levels as investors shift focus to 2028 advanced and final rates and early 2028 Presidential primary activity.

Investment Implications

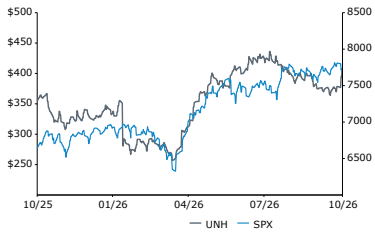

We remain Outperform on UNH and lower our price target to $500 (vs. $512 prior). We arrive at our price target of $500 via target P/E of 19.10x (vs. 21.25x earlier) and NTM EPS estimate of $26.15 (vs. $24.08 previously). UNH: Model

DETAILS

Drivers to price target change

We lower our PT to $500 from $512, reflecting lower future CAGR given higher growth in 2026 and outlook for multiple expansion during 2027 due to increased uncertainly discount due to political environment. We reduce our target price multiple to 19.10x (from 21.25x prior) and raise our NTM adj. EPS upwards to $26.15 (vs. $24.08 earlier)

3Q26 Summary

UNH reported 3Q26 results with a solid beat. Adjusted EPS came in at $4.69 for the quarter, beating consensus of $4.12 by 13.7%. Revenues for 3Q came in at $112.7B, 1.5% above consensus of $111.0B. MLR was 88.4%, 145 bps lower than consensus of 89.9%.

Guidance raise. UNH raised their FY26 guidance and now expects adj EPS to be at least $20.50 (up from $19.50 to $20 previously) and GAAP EPS to be at least $19.50 (vs. $18.45 to $18.95 previously). GAAP net earnings was raised to >$17.65B (vs. prior >$16.75B), and adj net earnings guide was initiated at >$18.585. MLR guidance was not updated, remains 88.1% +/- 25bps.

Strong MLR beat. For the quarter, MLR came in at 88.4%, 145 bps lower than consensus and 146 bps lower YoY. UNH cited that the YoY decrease was driven by medical cost management and pricing discipline, as well as benefit design changes and care delivery enhancements focused on affordability and integrated value-based care. MLR was impacted by $610 million of net favorable prior period reserve development related to 2026 dates of service.

Operating segments - UHC and Optum Health both exceeded our expectations, with UHC +$0.9 in earnings vs our estimate, and Optum Health at $0.6b vs our estimate of $0.1b.

UHC performance. UHC revenues of $86.3B in 3Q26 beat consensus by 1.7% but decreased YoY by ~80 bps. UHC operating margin was 3.3% vs. 2.1% in 3Q25. UNH specified that the higher margins YoY were driven by medical and operating cost management, pricing discipline, and benefit design changes. UHC membership decreased 225K sequentially to 48.3M people in 3Q26. We see reserving as continuing to be solid and above average levels.

Optum performance. In 3Q26, Optum revenue of $66.9B was down -3.3% YoY but beat consensus by 63 bps and grew 1.9% QoQ. Optum Health revenue was $22.9B (down 10% YoY), Optum Insights revenue was $5.5B (up 3% YoY), and Optum Rx saw revenue of $39.9B (up 0.5% YoY). Optum Health missed consensus by 1.8%, while Optum Insight and Optum Rx beat the street by 1.1% and 2.9%, respectively. Optum Health adj operating margin was 3.2% (vs. 0.2% in 3Q25), driven by strong operational discipline and medical cost management. Management primarily attributed the YoY decrease in Optum Health revenues to the fewer VBC care patients served.

INSIGHTS FROM THE CALL OR FOLLOW-UP DISCUSSIONS

Outlook

UNH expressed confidence in their 13-16% long term growth target for 2027 and beyond. Management said current analyst consensus for 2027 may understate the opportunity ahead, and they see the lower end of the long-term 13% to 16% growth rate off the $20.50 2026 adj EPS guide as a more reasonable starting point, which would imply ~$23.17 adj EPS in 27.

UHC MA

Management now expects MA margins to be in the top end of the 2-4% range, compared to ~3% during 2Q.

Plan design - 2027 plan design continued to take a “disciplined” approach, focused on preserving the long term sustainability and performance of MA. UHC will continue to prioritize high-value HMO, chronic special needs and dual special needs offerings. More than 94% of Medicare-eligible individuals nationwide will have access to a UHC Medicare plan (which is the same as the current year according to their 2025 plans press release), and approximately 90% of Medicare eligible consumers will have access to a $0 premium option. They are maintaining benefits such as dental, vision, hearing and additional health and wellness offerings.

Cost trend - Care intensity remains elevated relative to historical norms, but management is seeing signs that trends are "bending in a more stable direction," with an 8-9% range discussed during our followup conversation vs prior expectations of around 10%. Management is not assuming any deceleration to historical patterns or to ongoing clinician pricing pressure.

Stars - Management expects to approach 75% of total members in 4+ Star plans in 2028, and pointed out the industry average of 70%. (See our note on Stars: Quick Take: CMS releases 2027 Stars - strong showing by HUM; UNH and others generally see moderate reductions)

Optum Health

Optum Health performance was driven by strong execution and operational improvements including a 27% YoY increase in online self-scheduling, an increase in home health visits by 10% over the last year, and early success of their program to co-locate behavioral specialists within the primary care practices - with the number of referred patients doubling since last year. Management expressed confidence in growing earnings in 2027, and is pacing to a 6-8% target margin range. During our followup call, management discussed that higher performing clinics have already reached target margins, while others may not close the gap until 2028.

Management discussed fully accountable relationships as a potential earnings growth mechanism as currently only 4 million out of 20 million patients are in fully accountable relationships, along with growth in high-performing service lines including home health, hospice, and surgery centers. Management discussed 2027 as another year focused on contract negotiation and business optimization, with 2028 potentially seeing a pivot back to growth. They also discussed VBC as a focus for investment, along with AI.

UHC Medicaid

Medicaid remained "stable," and management continues to view 2026 as the trough year, with margin expectations "moderately better than -1%." Membership and acuity are within expectations. UNH believes there is an opportunity to get back to target margins (2%) in 2028, noting that Medicaid target margins do not include duals. Management expected rate increases in the 6-7% range (note: we see this as consistent with their prior commentary and not necessarily indicating a different environment than others are experiencing with their 5% rate increase comments).

UHC Commercial & Individual

Commercial cost trend was described as "steadily stabilizing," but still exceeding initial expectations of 11%. Areas of high cost included specialty pharmacy and acute health care services, with trend being driven by an acceleration of costs related to the No Surprises Act and greater cost intensity from clinicians and high-cost specialty drugs.

Management added that their pricing for 2027 includes the view that these trends persist into 2027. Commercial margin was 4% in 2025, with expectations for the same in 2026. Looking further ahead, UNH signaled that higher utilization in commercial could push out the timeline to achieve long-term margins. In other words, a slower recovery over multiple years to a 7-10% margin level. Management expects to provide more color in a couple of months time.

Optum Insight

2026 has been focused on both performance and investment, and 2027 will show "meaningful progress." The investment focus has been on further developing and bringing to market health care-specific AI solutions that enhance productivity performance outcomes and improve the patient and clinician experience.

Management painted Optum Insight in 2026 as "on plan," and encouraged viewing the business as a multi-year investment and execution journey. UNH noted that they continue to evaluate existing products and contracts that do not make sense, while also integrating AI into those existing offerings to improve their competitiveness and profitability. At the same time, launching new AI-first products/platforms remains a priority. Optum Insight will be seeing a series of product launches over the next two quarters, and UNH is confident on the business' performance in 2027. More broadly on Optum, management believes their remediation work is "largely complete" and is looking to 2027 with confidence.

Optum Rx

Optum Rx focus is on two efforts. First, management is focused on making its PBM business more transparent, which is resonating with customers. The company also highlighted that more than half of its members now come from outside UHC (with expectations for that trend to continue). Second, Optum Rx plans to further integrate pharmacy services with medical care to improve patient outcomes and better coordinate care.

PBM selling season - Off the back of strong selling seasons in the last couple of years, UNH sees that trend continuing this year, driven by the new transparent PBM model. The company highlighted that their transformation and transparency modernization efforts are resonating in the market, and is driving retention in the high-90s and success with new clients.

Specialty pharmacy - Management noted that specialty pharmacy continues to grow, driven by both improved volume and mix. The specialty pharmacy market is expected to continue growing, and UNH is hoping to increasingly bring their specialty pharmacy closer with their care delivery enterprise. They also highlighted the rising importance of infusion services in helping shift appropriate care to lower cost, more convenient settings. UNH cited that payers and other customers want infusion to grow given its lower cost yet still positive patient experience.

More broadly, the company highlighted the strength in their specialty pharmacy business, pointing out that specialty volumes were up 2.6% in Q3 (despite overall volumes being down 5% in the quarter). UNH also emphasized that they are "winning on provider choice," supported by strong LDD win rates and build-out of therapeutic centers (which enable close provider relationships). Finally, management added that they "win on consumer experience." UNH continues to look to expand their footprint, and PBM clients are increasingly looking for specialty pharmacy care as a seamless extension of their pharmacy benefit. Biosimilar uptake remains strong across clientele, and UNH's Optum specialty distribution is functioning well.

AI initiatives

UHC -AI-enabled information gathering and research have shortened appeal cycle times by 26%, and this is expected to accelerate in 2027. For this year's MA annual enrollment period, UNH is introducing AI-powered plan recommendation that uses a member's care history and local plan options to help simplify their selection.

Optum - UNH has expanded AI-enabled chart summarization to more than 40% of their employed clinicians, reducing chart review time by 33%. During our followup discussion, management reiterated ~$1.5B in AI investment in 2026, with 2027 being similar to slightly higher.

Other

Capital deployment - Capital deployment priorities are, first, reinvestment in the business through targeted organic growth and steady expansion in care delivery, technology modernization and broad-based AI adoption. Second, maintaining balance sheet strength. And third, returning value to shareholders. $5 billion of stock repurchases have been conducted through 3Q.

Financial leverage - Debt to cap ratio was 41.7% at the close of 3Q26 and management believes they remain on track to approach 40% by year-end.

See our Optum Insight teach-in note: 2 Sep 2026 - UnitedHealth (UNH): A summary of our teach in on Optum Insight and AI

Model changes - We have updated our model to account for the 3Q 2026 earnings. We lowered revenues by ~1% in FY27, ~2% in 28, and ~3% in 29, while MLR was lowered by 50bps in 2026 and 70-80bps over the subsequent forecast years, reflecting pricing discipline. Our adj. EPS improved by 1.9% for FY26, 5.2% in 27, 3.9% in 28, 2.4% in 29, and 1.0% in 30.

2026 UHC operating margin expectation was raised from 3.5% in our previous model to 3.7% in our new model, gradually rising to 4.7% in 2030. Our expectation for Optum earnings went up by 2.5% for FY26 in our new model, 7.2% higher in 27, 7.5% in 28, 5% in 29, and 3.2% in 30 due to margin improvement, with specialty pharmacy as an area of strength. Optum Health operating earning margins improved to 2.9% vs. 2.5% earlier for FY26, 4.3% vs 2.9% in 27, expanding to 6.3% in 2030 vs 4.8% earlier. Optum Insight margin improved to 22.6% vs. 22.3% earlier, while we moved to estimates of 23.4% for FY27-FY30 from 22.0% previously. However, we now see lower revenue in Optum Insight driving our 2026 earnings estimate down 2.1% and 2027 down 2.9% compared to our previous model. Optum Rx was largely in-line with our earlier estimates.

Investment Thesis

We are Outperform on UNH driven by 1) a continued sector recovery and disciplined pricing in MA; 2) 2027 margin improvement in Optum Health and Medicaid 3) valuations which are below our LT ranges for UNH; and 4) upside from potential AI growth in Optum Insight and VBC adoption in non-MA segments for Optum Health.

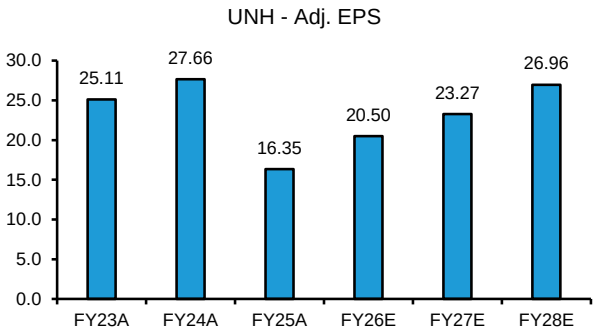

We see a pull forward in the MA recovery

UHC margins were down 48% (2.5% on an absolute basis) in '25, while revenues were up 16% driven by MA mispricing, along with pressure in other lines. We expect '26 MA membership to decline ~10%, from pricing discipline driving UHC revenues down 0.5%, and UHC earnings up 36% YoY. While we continue to expect additional MA margin improvement in 2027 and 2028, the pace of recovery should moderate as much of the initial margin recapture is occurring earlier than originally anticipated.

Beyond MA, we expect 2027 to mark the beginning of a recovery in UHC's Medicaid business, with 2026 representing the margin trough. We also see the commercial market achieving healthier returns over time as pricing actions and underwriting discipline continue to work through the system.

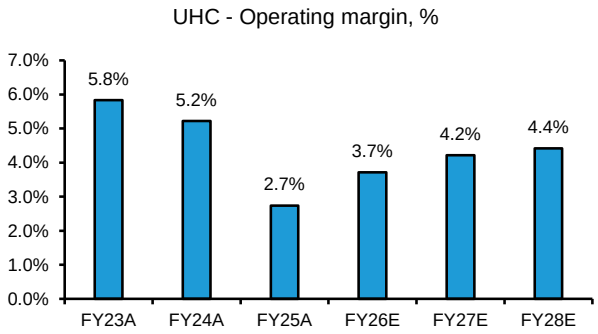

Combined with ongoing margin expansion at Optum Health and stable contributions from Optum Insight and Optum Rx, we continue to see a favorable earnings trajectory into 2027 and beyond. That said, we expect earnings growth to moderate relative to prior expectations, as the faster-than-expected MA margin recovery pulls forward a portion of the growth that would otherwise have been realized in later years.

VALUATION

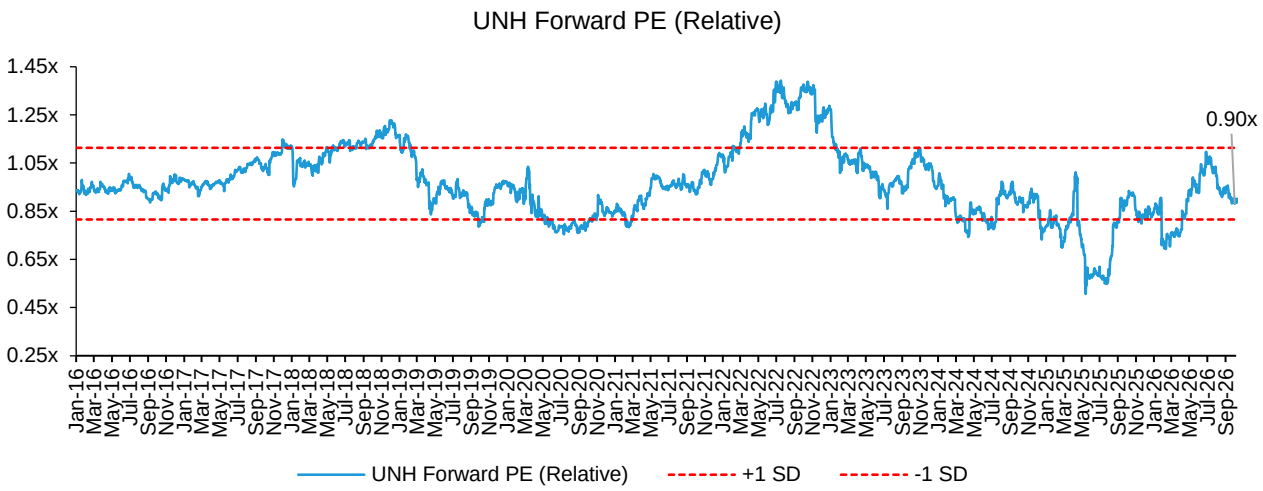

UNH relative multiple is 0.9x and on an absolute basis, UNH is trading at a P/E multiple of ~18x. Our updated model reduces 26-30 adj EPS CAGR from 14.1% to 13.9%. We lower our one year target multiple to 19.1x from 21.25x previously due to expectations for slower future growth. This still represents a modest increase to current multiple.

Faster than expected MA recovery lowers future growth outlook - We expect Medicaid and Commercial margins will begin expanding in 2027 providing some support to earnings. Additionally, we expect continued expansion in Optum Health margins and steady performance from Optum Insight and Optum Rx. However, we believe UNH MA margin recovery has been pulled forward compared to our initial expectations, lowering our outlook for future growth.

We see near term uncertainties which create headwinds to multiple expansion - Additionally, we expect we could see some volatility in 2027 due to policy risk and Medicare for All candidates making 2028 primary runs. We also expect that HUM stars restoration will likely make HUM a more aggressive competitor in 2028, limiting size of UNH's membership growth.

We expect UHC Medicaid recovery beginning in 2027. We believe Medicaid is nearing the end of the margin cycle seen over the past three years. The pressure has been driven by a pronounced mismatch between member cost trend and state reimbursement rates following post-pandemic redeterminations. The result has been a sharp increase in cost trend without a corresponding adjustment in rates, leaving Medicaid managed care margins at historically depressed levels through 2024-2026.

VALUATION METHODOLOGY

UnitedHealth Group Inc

For UNH, our preferred valuation methodology is relative (to S&P) price-to-forward-earning (P/FE) due to the predictive NTM results in quantile analysis across time periods, as well as the relatively strong and stable earnings generating capability of the companies' mature business. We base the companies' valuation on our EPS estimates 12-months forward, multiply it by the respective absolute P/FE ratio for each company to arrive at our price target. Specifically, we arrive at a price target of $500 for UNH as we apply multiple of 19.10x to NTM (“Next Twelve Months”) adj EPS of $26.15. In addition, we acknowledge that our coverage companies generate healthy amounts of cash and often maintain relatively conservative balance sheets, suggesting potential further upside through effective capital allocation over the investment horizon.

RISKS

UnitedHealth Group Inc

Downside risks to our price target include: Higher medical utilization, recession and COVID impacts which impact business volumes and costs; increased govt scrutiny on industry consolidation, PBM volume losses from health plans clients leaving UNH; inability to generate and maintain PBM cost savings; unanticipated reduction in government spending for Medicaid or Medicare.
