Omnicom Group Inc.

Gross organic beat, margin miss

3Q26 results were a mixed bag (organic better but margin miss) but we now have clarity on FY26E financials, and operational gearing is disappointing. Stock looks inexpensive but it comes with uncertainties on medium-term margins and industry growth.

Omnicom 3Q26A results were mixed with organic better (7.2% vs. Bloomberg consensus at 4.4%) but adj. EBITA margin worse (17.6% vs. 18.5%) while adj. EPS was in line (US$2.73 vs. consensus at US$2.72). We now have clarity on 2026E financials thanks to extra disclosure and we explain the lack of operational gearing by the gap between gross and net organic moving to 4pps vs. 2pps in recent years as we believe that Omnicom is aligning Interpublic Principal media buying practice to theirs and by the incremental margins being lower than last year's 15% (11% needed to get to 75% drop-through on the US$900m of announced synergies). We remodel our margin assumptions based on the extra disclosure, and despite assuming some reinvestment, we get 17.9% EBITA margins in 2028E (vs. 19.5% before), which is well ahead of Publicis' 15.6% (on a like-for-like basis). We cut our price target to $87, based on lower forecasts.

Will Omnicom reach such lofty heights? That is a key question for investors. Overall, our analysis supports a mid-cycle organic growth rate of approximately 3.5%. At 8x 2026E P/E, the stock looks inexpensive. But it comes with uncertainties related to margins, further dispositions beyond 2026A and the impact of AI on an industry that has only grown 1-2% organically since 2017. We don't expect AI to kill agencies, but it could put further pressure on fees. This is why we are Equal Weight. We see better upside or better certainty elsewhere (Canal+, Informa and JC Decaux are our top ideas; we prefer Havas among agencies).

Why read this note: (1) key points from results and call; (2) new forecasts; (3) analysing 2026E revenues; (4) analysing margins; (5) modelling organic growth by services; (6) focus on organic growth rate (estimating net sales, historical evolution, comparison with peers); (7) new business tracker; (8) track record against expectations; (9) results variance; (10) current and historical multiples; and (11) detailed forecasts. This is more than a results note.

Why EQUAL WEIGHT?

While Omnicom is cheap, valuation without momentum rarely works in Media. Skepticism around the resulting margin from the IPG acquisition, the divergence in gross and net organic and overall structural worries mean the stock need EPS upgrades to work, something we have not seen in recent times.

Upside case USD 105.00

We use a 'fair value' upside scenario based on our FY27E 'recovery EPS' and what we believe to be fair value P/E.

Downside case USD 52.00

Our downside is based on a 'recession' P/E (average of what happened in the last two recessions excluding the punctual outlier data) applied to our base-case recession scenario EPS (Explained in Mediawatch 35).

Upside/Downside scenarios

Key points from release and call

- 3Q26 results - better organic, margin miss, EPS in line: Total revenue declined 1.7% to US$6,423m, ahead of Barclays' forecast (US$6,182m) and consensus (US$6,217m). Organic revenue growth of 7.2% was well ahead of Barclays at 4.5% and consensus at 4.4%. Adjusted EBITA grew to US$1,130m, below our forecast of US$1,163m and consensus of US$1,150m, while adjusted net income rose to US$752m, below our forecast of US$770m. Finally, adjusted diluted EPS was US$2.73, below our estimate of US$2.81 and broadly in line with consensus at US$2.72.

- Changes in forecasts - c. 6% EPS downgrade in 2026E: We make several changes to our model (i.e., higher Dispositions drag, reduce adj. EBITA margins owing to less flow-through of synergies and marginal change in the number of shares). Overall, these changes result in EPS changes of -6.3% to US$10.30 in 2026E, of -8.9% to US$10.99 in 2027E and of -8.2% to US$12.15 in 2028E. We are 3% ahead of the Bloomberg-consensus established pre these results in 2026E but 5% below in 2027E and 2028E.

- Increasing FY26E organic guidance: Omnicom raised FY26E organic revenue growth guidance for ongoing operations to 5.0% from the previous 4.5-5.0%, itself a raise from the prior 4.0-5.0% range, reflecting the stronger 9M performance. CFO Phil Angelastro said "Given the strong results year-to-date, we now estimate that full year 2026 organic core revenue growth will be approximately 5%... We certainly think it's a conservative estimate, which is consistent with how we've always approached this process, especially for Q4." When answering a question on why Q4 organic would slow that much (5.0% implies 3.0% in Q4) CEO John Wren said: "As long as I remember, as we come into the fourth quarter, there's always a couple of US$100m worth of spend that clients look to see what's left in their budgets. They either release it, or if they're looking to report more revenue or more net income themselves, sometimes they don't. We've been saying the same thing for the last 20 years and probably of that only one or two years that excess didn't come through. But as Phil [Angelastro] just said, we prefer to be conservative in our estimates."

- Reminder of what the new Omnicom's strengths are: CEO John Wren stated, "We bring together key differentiators that drive client growth. First, Acxiom's trusted identity solution helps clients better understand their consumers. Second, our position as the largest media buyer gives us strength and scale to help clients achieve better commercial outcomes. Third, our data-informed creative leadership engages consumers and drives measurable results. Fourth, our Connected Capabilities model brings together media, creativity, production, and CRM to create personalized experiences across multiple channels. Lastly, Omni, our AI-powered platform, underpins it all. Together these advantages connect the entire marketing ecosystem to drive greater value for our clients. We're also helping clients modernize their operations, get more value from their technology investments, and build a more intelligent enterprise. Beyond these recognitions and partnerships, our Connected Capabilities model is translating into new business, strong client retention, and expanded relationships across our portfolio."

- Dispositions firmed up at US$3.6bn: At the 2Q26A results call, CFO Phil Angelastro said "The US$3.2bn of total annualized prior-year revenue related to the dispositions, the equivalent of that number now is between US$3.5bn and US$3.6bn on an annualized basis". Yesterday, he said "The estimate of annualized revenue for all businesses identified as dispositions and held for sale is an annualized revenue of approximately US$3.6bn and prior-year adjusted EBITA margin for the year of approximately 11% to 12%. While our goal remains December 31st, 2026, it is possible that the closing process for some of the transactions extends into the beginning of 2027."

- Newfound clarity on 2026E figures means disappointing operational gearing: Omnicom gave guidance for 4Q25 Core and Dispositions revenues and EBITA, 4Q26E EBITA margin increase (200-210bps) and 4Q26E Dispositions revenues and EBITA. So now we have all the numbers needed to compare FY25E and FY26E Core. Our conclusion is that the extra 5.5% of gross organic (plus FX benefits of at least 0.5%; 0.5% is guidance but we get 0.8%) comes with little EBITA contribution if Omnicom indeed delivers 75-80% of the synergies. How come? We explain our reasoning in our Focus on margins section of this report, but organic is 5.5% on a gross basis but arguably only 1.5% on a net basis (See Figure 15). At 2025A Core 15.3% margin that would generate US$73m of incremental EBITA. US$4,224m (FY26E Core EBITA) less US$73m less US$3,490m (FY25E Core EBITA) result in US$656m, so 73% of the US$900m synergies, i.e. slightly below the 75-80% guidance. We get to 75% if the net organic comes with a marginal 11% margin.

- Growth by disciplines: The new discipline disclosure is useful and should give proper organic growth by division next year, arguably the best disclosure among peers. CFO Phil Angelastro said during the call: "In the third quarter of 2026, revenue for Integrated Media was approximately 53% of our revenues, which included our media, commerce, data, CRM, consulting, and content automation businesses. Revenue for advertising was 15.6%, health was 9%, PR was 11%, and experiential and other was 11%." He said Integrated Media "led the way with very strong growth over 10%", Experiential & Other grew "strong double-digit", PR grew "low single digits", Health was "marginally negative" and Advertising was "down in the mid-single digits, an improvement from the first half of 2026". Compared with Q2, Advertising improved, while PR and Health slowed. He again pointed to the World Cup, saying Experiential & Other growth was "again driven by experiential growth related to the FIFA World Cup", but added: "we do not expect growth in this discipline in Q4". Creative/ advertising being only c. 16% of revenue is a good mix point, in our view. However, Q3 organic growth of 7.2% was boosted by Experiential/World Cup by c.150bps. That assumes close to zero growth instead of c. 15% for c. 10% of the business. With no Experiential growth expected in Q4, that support falls away.

- We estimate that net sales organic are c. 4% below gross in 2026E: We have a method to our madness that we refined over time and believe is sound. Please see Figure 14 and Figure 15 for more details.

- Buyback: Omnicom has completed US$3.0bn of its US$5.0bn buyback programme and expects another US$0.5bn during 2026, with the remainder by end-Q1 2027. CEO John Wren said: "In compliance with our Board's authorization, we're executing our plan to repurchase US$5.0bn in shares. To date, we've completed US$3.0bn in share repurchases, and we expect to complete approximately US$0.5bn of additional repurchases during 2026 with the remainder completed by the end of the first quarter of 2027." This phasing was surprising to us. If Omnicom does US$3.5bn this year i.e. US$0.5bn in Q4, that would leave US$1.5bn for Q1 2027. Why have such an uneven buyback when shares are bought on the open market?

- Q4 financial pointers: CFO Phil Angelastro gave several useful modelling points. On tax, he said: "Q4 2026, we estimate our rate to be approximately 26%." On FX, he said: "Assuming recent FX rates stay the same, we estimate FX will be slightly negative for Q4 and bringing the full year to a positive of approximately half of 1%." On interest, he said: "Net interest expense is expected to increase to just under US$100m in Q4 2026 from the Q4 2025 actual amount of US$53m." On Dispositions, he said "currently, we estimate the revenue related to those businesses will approximate US$325m in Q4 2026". On depreciation and amortisation, he said "quarterly depreciation and amortisation levels have been relatively consistent throughout the year, and we would expect Q4 amounts to be similar".

Changes in forecasts: c. 6% EPS downgrade in 2026E

We make several changes to our model:

- Upgrading 2026E organic to 5.5% from 4.7% and 2027E to 4.0% from 3.5%
- Increase Dispositions drag by c. 80bps in 2026E and 2027E
- Reduce adj. EBITA margins owing to less flow-through of synergies
- Marginal change in the number of shares

Overall, these changes result in EPS changes of -6.3% to US$10.30 in 2026E, of -8.9% to US$10.99 in 2027E and of -8.2% to US$12.15 in 2028E. We are 3% ahead of the Bloomberg consensus established pre these results in 2026E but 5% below in 2027E and 2028E.

Focus on 2026E revenues

Introducing the new Omnicom

For 2026, Omnicom will report total numbers, Core Operations (what they keep) and Dispositions (what they sell) across revenues, EBITA and EBIT both adjusted and reported. This is useful for understanding underlying trends, but we are missing the figures for what they sold already to have a complete picture (granted this is almost impossible to do as they don't own these businesses any more).

Modelling 2026E quarterly revenues

The figure below shows how we model 2026E quarterly revenues for Omnicom based on Core Operations and Dispositions. While it was more art than science in previous quarters, it is now easier thanks to Omnicom's enhanced disclosure:

- We start with 2025 Core Operations revenues. Omnicom has disclosed 1Q25A, 2Q25A and 3Q25A (obviously) but has also now given us an estimate for 4Q25A (Slide 33 of the 3Q26A result presentation; Link). We note that the sum of these four 2025A quarters yields US$3,527m for Dispositions while new guidance is US$3,600m (increased again). We infer that this may partly reflect transactions whose closing could extend into early 2027E.

- We apply to 2025A Core Operations quarterly revenues our quarterly organic and quarterly FX forecasts (+4.8% and -0.5% for Q4, respectively). This gives us 2026E Core Operation quarterly revenues.

- For 2025 Dispositions, we now have the data (first three quarters disclosed, Q4 estimated on Slide 33).

- For 2026 Dispositions, we have the first three quarters, and CFO Phil Angelastro stated that "currently, we estimate the revenue related to those businesses will approximate US$325m in Q4 2026".

- Finally, we add Core Operations and Dispositions to get total revenues.

We get US$26,161m of FY26E revenues, which makes sense if you take FY25E Core Operations revenues of US$22,798m, grow it at 6.3% (5.5% organic, 0.8% FX) and add c. 50% of our assumed US$3,527m of Dispositions (0% at beginning of year, 100% at end of year). That points to US$25,960m, i.e. close to our forecasts.

Focus on margins

Attempting to get to FY26A adj. EBITA margins

During their investor day, Omnicom issued an 8-K (Link) stating that:

- "Revenue is estimated to grow approximately 4% on a constant currency basis in 2026 compared to the last 12 months ended September, 30, 2025 combined revenue base of Omnicom and Interpublic of $23.1bn, net of planned dispositions (as included in our 2025 fourth quarter and full year investor presentation)."
- "Cost reduction synergies expected of US$1.5bn over 30 months, with 75-80% of the US$0.9bn of 2026" cost reduction savings resulting in EBITA growth and margin improvement."
- "Double-digit growth expected in diluted Adjusted Net Income per share."

Since then, management upgraded their organic guidance to 5.0% ("Given the strong results year-to-date, we now estimate that full year 2026 organic core revenue growth will be approximately 5%"), giving us clear guidance on FX and Dispositions for 2026E (as explained in the previous section). On EBITA growth / margins there were still uncertainties, but CFO Phil Angelastro was pretty clear in the 3Q26A results call when he said "when we look at the overall expectations for 2026 for the year, as we said earlier on the call, and as we've said previous to this, we've achieved about 200 basis points to 210 basis points improvement over the prior year through nine months. Pretty consistent through the quarters, and that's our expectation for the year, including the math on the synergies, including incremental contributions from the business itself and the growth, and including the investments we're making in our platforms and in our people and talent and everything else that's going on so that we can better prepare the company for sustained long-term growth. That what's we expect."

We now model 207bps EBITA margin improvement in 4Q26E and 213 bps in FY26E to get to 17.4% Core EBITA margin.

While we now have clarity in terms of modelling 2026E EBITA, the outcome appears difficult to reconcile with the underlying revenue assumptions. If we take 2025A Core EBITA of US$3,490m (could still vary slightly depending on final Dispositions in 4Q26, but at least Slide 33 gives a very good indication) and add 75-80% of the US$900m of synergies, we get US$4,165-4,210m, i.e. something very close to our US$4,224m FY26E EBITA forecasts. That would indicate that the US$1,391m of extra Core Revenues (US$22,798m in FY25A growing at 5.5% organic with a 0.6% FX benefits) comes with very little incremental EBITA or margins, which appears at odds with the underlying revenue assumptions. Using last year's Core margins of 15.3% would logically result in US$213m of extra EBITA.

What could be the potential explanation for such a lack of operational gearing? We see two potential explanations:

- Organic is 5.5% on a gross basis but arguably only 1.5% on a net basis (see Figure 15), so at 2025A Core 15.3% margin that would generate US$73m of incremental EBITA. 4,219 (FY26E Core EBITA) less 73 less 3,490 (FY25E Core EBITA) would result in US$656m, so 73% of the synergies, i.e. slightly below the 75-80% guidance.

- Organic is 5.5% so at 2025A Core 15.3% margin that would generate US$213m of incremental EBITA. 4,219 (FY26E Core EBITA) less 213 less 3,490 (FY25E Core EBITA) would result in US$516m so 57% of the synergies, i.e. well below the 75-80% guidance.

We see the first explanation as the most likely. To get to 75% of the synergies, you would need 11% incremental EBITA margin on the 1.5% net organic (plus FX).

Reminder on synergies

At their FY25 results presentation, management presented an updated breakdown of targeted cost synergies, phasing and costs to achieve. The projected cost synergy target over three years has doubled to US$1.5 billion vs. management's initial estimate of US$750 million (and our estimate of US$1,070m, as per our analysis here: 10 questions for a slimmer Omnicom). The presentation breaks the target down as follows: 2026: US$900m (US$645m labour, US$180m real estate, US$75m G&A, IT, procurement and other) with US$250m costs to achieve; 2027: US$1,300m (US$920m labour, US$220m real estate, US$160m G&A, IT, procurement and other) with US$100m costs to achieve; 2028: US$1,500m (US$1,000m labour, US$240m real estate, US$260m G&A, IT, procurement and other) with US$50m costs to achieve. In short, management have doubled their expected cost synergy target, with two-thirds driven by headcount reductions.

This compares to the previously communicated US$750m run-rate of targeted synergies, as outlined below. Interestingly, costs to achieve were US$437m before vs. US$400m now - twice the synergies with less costs to achieve.

Assessing margin potential based on synergies

Below, we show the margin expansion these synergies can drive over the next three years. We have explained our methodology for 2026E above (start with 2025A Core Pro Forma, remove Dispositions, add synergies at a 43% reinvestment). As an illustrative exercise, we use the same methodology for 2027E and 2028E but we use a 45% reinvestment on the incremental synergies. This exercise yields 18.2% adj. EBITA margins in 2027E and 18.5% in 2028E. Our readers can make more conservative assumptions around re-investment but we would note that Omnicom's 15.3% in 2025E is already higher than most margins we forecast for other agencies by 2028E. Put differently: our analysis suggests that even if Omnicom were to re-invest 100% of their cost synergies between now and 2028E,it would still be positioned to deliver the highest margin in the industry.

Industry-high margins for Omnicom

The figure below compares margins across agencies on a revenue basis (not net sales) before restructuring. This is because Havas, Publicis and WPP disclose both net sales and revenues, while Omnicom reports only revenues. To make the comparison like-for-like to US peers, we also adjust the European names for IFRS16, meaning that depreciation is added back while the cash cost of leases is subtracted. Finally, we add back restructuring charges for Publicis (i.e. we get a higher number), which is the only agency that includes it above the line as part of staff costs. We assume flat restructuring charges for Publicis until 2028E.

On that basis, Omnicom appears to come well ahead of peers by 2028E on our forecasts (when the company expects run-rate cost synergies of US$1.5bn). That said, on revenues and adjusting for IFRS16, Omnicom (on a stand-alone basis) appears to be already best in class in 2025A at 15.3% vs Publicis at 14.5%, Havas at 11.7% and WPP at 9.4%.

Modelling organic growth by services

Omnicom's new useful revenue breakdown

Omnicom has changed its disclosure on revenue breakdown by services from the old (1) Advertising (Media and Creative), (2) CRM Precision Marketing, (3) CRM Commerce and Brand Consulting, (4) CRM Experiential, (5) CRM Execution and Support and (6) Public Relations and Healthcare to (1) Integrated Media (Media plus Commerce plus Production plus Data), (2) Advertising (Creative), (3) Health, (4) Public Relations and (5) Experiential and Others.

We show 1Q26A disclosure below (revenues in the second column and indication of organic growth in the third column). Based on industry benchmarks, we then make some assumption on how much of total third-party costs are in each division to get an estimate of net sales.

Our base case suggests Omnicom can deliver ~3.5% annual organic growth

We use our previous estimates of Omnicom and Interpublic media revenues in 2024A that we grow in line with COMvergence billings to get to 35% of 2025A revenues being Media. For Production and Consulting we use the number of employees (3k in both instances) to approximate revenues leading Commerce and Data to be 14% of revenues to get to 52% for Integrated Media.

Based on all the analyses above, we establish three scenarios for Omnicom's medium-term organic growth rate, Low, Base and High. We get -0.4%, 3.5% and 6.4%, respectively. This assumes no impact from market share gain or loss, and no recession.

During their investor day, management stated "As it has over time, through many economic cycles and technological disruptions, Omnicom has delivered low to mid-single-digit revenue growth. After completing the integration in 2026, and with the strength of the new Omnicom, we're well positioned for strong growth in the future".

We provide far more detail on organic growth by services here: Omnicom: Feedback from Investor Day (16/03/26).

For 2027E, our 4.0% organic growth forecast reflects assumed continued Media strength coming from underlying industry growth but also net new business wins (see our Tracking new business and impact on organic growth section).

A focus on organic growth rate

Gross to net - not a key driver of our investment view

Trying to assess Omnicom's growth on a net basis, like all other agencies, rather than revenues is a minority sport (especially popular in the north west corner of les Champs Élysées). We therefore place greater emphasis on adj. EBITA growth at constant currency or free cash flow growth, which we view as far more representative of Omnicom's fundamental value. While Omnicom might appear to be growing slower on a net than on a gross basis, adj. EBITA margins are flat to slightly up on a gross basis while improving clearly on a net basis. By contrast, Publicis margins are flat to slightly up on a net basis but declining on a gross basis. That said, we recognise that some investors do care about the gross vs. net debate and as such we continue to calculate Omnicom's growth on a net basis. Today, we introduce our third methodology in our quest to improve accuracy – one we believe is the most robust to date, drawing on WPP's disclosure.

WPP has disclosed both revenues and net sales organic on a quarterly basis since 1Q18A. They also give us pass-through revenues / costs every quarter. And there is a strong correlation (adjusted R2 of 0.92) between the difference in gross vs. net organic (1.5% in 4Q25A for instance, -6.9% on a net sales vs. -5.4% on revenues) and the year-on-year difference for pass-through divided by revenues (1.5% in 4Q25A for instance, 25.8% in 4Q25A, i.e. £937m over £3,628m minus 24.3% in 4Q24A, i.e. £961m over £3,956m).

Source: Company data, Barclays Research.

Therefore, to get Omnicom's organic net sales , we take their organic revenues and add the year-on-year difference between pass through costs divided by revenues. In 2025A, Omnicom reported 3.3% organic growth on a revenue basis (using 4.0% for 4Q25A) while the year-on-year difference between pass through / revenues was 2.7%, which points to organic net sales around 0.5%. In 2024A, Omnicom reported 5.2% organic, the difference 1.7%, pointing to organic net sales of 3.5%. In 2023A, Omnicom reported 4.1% organic, the difference 2.7,% pointing to organic net sales of 1.4%.

In 1Q26A, Omnicom reported 3.9% organic, the pro forma difference was 3.8%, yielding organic sales of 0.1%. In 2Q26A, Omnicom reported 6.1% organic, the pro forma difference was 4.2%, yielding organic sales of 1.9%. In 3Q26A, Omnicom reported 7.2% organic, the pro forma difference was 3.8%, yielding organic sales of 3.4%.

So in the last three years, the average difference between revenues and net sales organic has been 2.4%. Let's call that 2% and argue that we solved that particular conundrum. In 2026 year-to-date however, the difference has been c. 4% as in our view, the widening gross-to-net gap may reflect efforts to align Interpublic's media buying practices more closely with Omnicom's approach. This partly explains the lack of operational gearing this year. We would expect the gross-to-net gap to go back to 2pps next year.

Omnicom's quarterly organic evolution

Please note that historical organic growth excludes Accuen. Historical numbers until 4Q25 are for Omnicom on a standalone basis.
Source: Company data, Barclays Research estimates.

We adjust Omnicom's reported organic growth in 2014-19 by excluding Accuen's organic to make the figure more comparable to the peer group. Management explained that the slowdown at Accuen was due to clients shifting their preference to an agent-type of relationship and away from the less-transparent bundled approach in which Omnicom acts as principal.

Omnicom versus peers

Figure 17 shows the organic growth rates of Omnicom and its peers. Until 2Q20, the US agencies had outperformed their European counterparts every quarter since 2Q16. The European agencies outperformed their American peers last year, driven by Publicis's outperformance and IPG's . Omnicom outperformed WPP and IPG in FY23, but underperformed Publicis – a trend that continued in FY24. 1Q25A and 2Q25A also followed the same trend, however, in 3Q25A and in 4Q25A, Omnicom pro-forma for IPG witnessed lower growth than Havas too. In 1Q26, Omnicom was ahead of both WPP and Havas but light vs Publicis. In 2Q26, Omnicom reported organic growth at 6.1%, well ahead of its peers. 3Q26 continued this momentum, with Omnicom again outperforming its peers. We note that any comparison this year should be taken with caution given Omnicom's disclosure on revenue and excluding underperforming businesses that are held for sale.

Tracking new business and impact on organic growth

On 8 October 2026, we published our Agencies Account Moves Tracker - 3Q26. Tracking agencies' account moves and reviews matters for three reasons: 1) they are among the few data points we have in an industry with very few KPIs; 2) they can give us some visibility into future organic performance; 3) they signal something about (perceived) capabilities. In a world where agencies have grown 1-2% since 2017 (revenue-weight average of the "Holding" companies), market share moves can have a material impact on organic. This is part of the reason we expect a continued operating outperformance of Publicis (guiding to 4.5-5.0% organic in FY26E) relative to WPP (which are guiding to a low- to mid-single-digit organic decline in 2H26E, after -4.7% in 1H26) especially, but also Omnicom (c.5.0% guidance on a gross basis) and Havas (2.0-3.0%). Here are our key conclusions:

Media: Year-to-date (as of 22/10/26), Publicis comes in at No. 1 with US$4.7bn in net new business ex retentions (mainly driven by Pepsi win) and US$5.7bn including retentions. Omnicom ranks second with US$2.3bn (losing its top spot due to Pepsi loss but starting Q4 well thanks to winning Coca-Cola's North American business), while Havas, WPP and Dentsu are in negative territory (at -US$0.5bn, -US$0.8bn and -US$1.8bn, respectively). When it comes to wins (and retentions), WPP actually ranks positive at US$2.3bn. However, with US$4.3bn lost billings, WPP also continues to lose the most too.

Creative: From 4Q24 to 3Q26, WPP and Publicis have come away as the clear winners. Based on publicly disclosed account reviews, Publicis has won 62 creative pitches while losing 16. WPP has won 58 while losing 21. However, the associated media billings have been larger for WPP, putting WPP ahead of Publicis when considering the relative size of moves. Havas is broadly neutral. While Omnicom has won more accounts than they lost, the associated media billings of losses far outweigh the wins, putting Omnicom at the bottom of the list.

More at risk for WPP and Omnicom in Media for rest of the year: In Media, WPP and Omnicom are each the main incumbent on four of the biggest 10 pitches right now, including IKEA, Deutsche Telekom, Bristol-Myers Squibb among others. Overall, WPP and Omnicom are both incumbent to 32% of billings under review (US$1.6bn each), Dentsu 22% (US$1.1bn), Havas 8% (US$0.4bn), and Publicis 7% (US$0.3bn). On our estimates, this corresponds to 3.8% for WPP as a percentage of 2027E net sales versus 2.0% for Omnicom, 0.9% for Havas and 0.1% for Publicis. With a two-quarter average ramp, we expect the impact to land more in 2027E than in 2026E.

What to make of it all, as of year-to-September? Our analysis continues to point to a meaningful market share advantage for Publicis, which remains the clear leader in Media net new business and one of the strongest performers in Creative. This translates into the largest estimated organic tailwind in 2026E (+410bps) and, if current trends persist, also implies the strongest carry-over into 2027E (+220bps). WPP's position looks more balanced than Media data alone would suggest, with strong Creative share gains helping offset Media losses and reducing the expected 2026E drag to just -50bps; current wins also imply a positive +30bps tailwind into 2027E. However, WPP (and now Omnicom too) remains the most exposed agency to ongoing Media reviews, suggesting the highest execution risk looking forward, in our view. Omnicom has performed relatively well in Media but lags peers in Creative, leaving, we believe, the overall impact broadly neutral in 2026E and slightly negative for 2027E; while Havas has been a quieter share gainer in 2026E, recent negative performance in creative and media implies a 90bps 2027E headwind. Omnicom's Media net new business stood at +US$1.3bn year-to-September, excluding retentions, although it swung to a net loss in 3Q26. Creative remains the weak spot: despite winning 71 accounts against 52 losses over 4Q24-3Q26, the associated media billings of losses outweighed wins by US$3.0bn, although Omnicom did record the highest net Creative wins in 3Q26. Omnicom is also incumbent on US$1.9bn of Media billings under review, equivalent to an estimated 0.8% of 2027E net sales, having already lost PepsiCo's global media account to Publicis without a pitch (an estimated US$106m, or 40bps, of 2027E net sales).

However, since the end of September, Omnicom has added +US$1.1bn in Media net new business, attributed heavily to the announcement of winning Coca-Cola's North American business. Using a 9% billings to net sales conversion, current FX, and accounting for the two-quarter ramp, this translates to a 29bps boost on organic revenue growth in 2027E. During the same period, Havas stayed broadly flat, WPP lost US$0.1bn, and Coca-Cola NA incumbent Publicis lost US$0.9bn, which works out to a 1bp gain, 6bps loss, and 30bps loss in 2027E organic growth, respectively. This is on top of what we show in Figure 21 below, which notably brings Omnicom into positive territory on a net new accounts basis for 2027E.

3Q26 results: Better organic, margin miss, EPS in line

Below we show Core revenues (ex Dispositions) and revenues including Dispositions. Total revenue declined 1.7% to US$6,423m, ahead of Barclays' forecast (US$6,182m) and consensus (US$6,217m). Organic revenue growth of 7.2% was well ahead of Barclays at 4.5% and consensus at 4.4%, with the caveat that the 7.2% is on "core operations" (i.e. excluding underperforming assets held for sale), which overstates the number. On an absolute basis, Core revenues were also ahead of our expectations and consensus. Adjusted EBITA grew to US$1,130m, below our forecast of US$1,163m and consensus of US$1,150m, while adjusted net income rose to US$752m, below our forecast of US$770m. Finally, adjusted diluted EPS was US$2.73, below our estimate of US$2.81 and broadly in line with consensus at US$2.72.

Guide to the Barclays Fundamental Equity Research Rating System:
Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Investors should carefully read the entire research report including the definitions of all ratings and not infer its contents from ratings alone.

Stock Rating
Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View
Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Neutral - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are steady, neither improving nor deteriorating.

Negative - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are deteriorating.

Sustainable Investing Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes a 'sustainable', 'ESG', 'green', 'climate-friendly' or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain sustainability credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of sustainable investing considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under a sustainable investing label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve.
