JPM View: The key takeaway from XOM's 3Q26 print was the significant "self help" steps taken by the company to boost the profitability of its Energy Products segment downstream. These steps include counter cyclical investments in expansion projects at Baytown as well as the reconfiguration of its existing refineries to raise distillate yields. Since 2019, CFO Hansen noted XOM's success in raising its diesel yields by 3.5% vs. 2019 levels, which contributed $1.5bn of incremental earnings in 3Q26 (and $3.5bn YTD). Meanwhile, the organizational shift in 2022 into one Product Solutions division that combines refining, oil products, and petrochemicals has made the company more nimble to capture incremental value by optimizing feedstocks, adjusting yields, and moving products to markets that generate the most value. Another key theme from the print was the company's strategy to gain greater control of its LNG portfolio by increasing its working interests in Papua LNG to 34% and the Rovuma LNG project in Mozambique to 50%, which will include operatorship of both projects. Finally, the company raised its base quarterly dividend by 4% to $1.07 per share (2.2% implied yield) and established a 2027 $20bn buyback target, which is consistent with 2026 levels. On the back of the significant working capital tailwind, 3Q26 FCF of $19.1bn was 37%/26% ahead of JPMe/Street estimates, although FCF-ex working capital of $16.9bn was a more modest 2.7% above our estimate. As a result of the sizeable FCF beat given the WC tailwind, net debt declined by $9bn to $22.1bn.

CEO Woods pegged the tightness in refining to be associated with three factors, which are not expected to normalize well into 2027: (1) constraints in moving clean product out of the Strait of Hormuz; (2) attacks on Russian refineries; and (3) of Chinese refining capacity. Looking ahead, XOM expects to commence initial production at its 5th FPSO in Guyana at the Uara project in late 4Q26 and flat production levels in the Middle East (~350 MBoe/d offline). XOM expects less scheduled maintenance Upstream, which should drive a modest $50mm q/q tailwind to sequential earnings. In Product Solutions, the company anticipates scheduled maintenance to be higher in 3Q26 on a q/q basis (~$140mm headwind to sequential earnings). Finally, XOM expects Corporate expenses to decline to $600mm from ~$864mm in 3Q26, while capex is still expected to range from $27bn to $29bn. We have updated our model post the 3Q26 print, and model total production volumes of 4,546 MBoe/d in 4Q26. Our 2026/2027 EPS moves to $14.54/$13.78 from $14.11/$13.97, and our 2026/2027 CFPS estimate moves to $20.41/$21.81 from $20.33/$22.42. After updating our model, we increase our Dec-27 price target to $199 from $186 due to the increase in commodity prices.

- Refining tightness looks like it could last into 2027. Energy Products drove the 3Q26 print as adjusted earnings of $9.05bn more than doubled from $4.10bn in 2Q26. With ~10% of global refining capacity offline as capacity in Russia and the Middle East remains curtailed, product markets stayed exceptionally tight, and the indicative refining margin climbed to $50.3/bbl

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

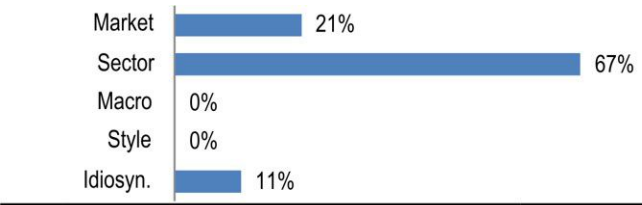

Investment Thesis

We maintain an Overweight rating on XOM. XOM has a balanced portfolio across Upstream, Downstream and Chemical/Specialty Products segments, with a low dividend breakeven and torque to a potential demand recovery over the medium term. In the Upstream segment, XOM should deliver substantial FCF growth from its unique high-margin assets in Guyana and differentiated production growth strategy in the Permian Basin. XOM has delivered on its major projects, which should positively contribute to earnings growth over the medium term. Additionally, XOM's low dividend coverage breakeven should also help protect the downside in a weaker commodity price and demand environment. XOM has a healthy recurring dividend, with the recent increase in the base dividend highlighting the company's confidence in sustaining strong performance over the long term.

Valuation

Our price target of $199 per share uses a 2028E FCF/EV yield of ~6.25% at current strip pricing. We believe that XOM's diversified business model and business scale warrant a premium to its peer group.

(vs. $29.0/bbl in 2Q26 and $16.3/bbl in 1Q26). On the call, CEO Darren Woods split the supply shortage into three buckets across impacts from the Middle East disruptions, Russia's refining capacity, and idle Chinese capacity, and while acknowledged each variable is difficult to predict that normalization of refining capacity is not likely until "well through next year." Brent fell -$7.51/bbl sequentially to $97.01/bbl while cracks surged, implying refining capacity and not crude supply remains the constraint. XOM's +$800mm annual sensitivity per $1/bbl implies ~$4.3bn/quarter from the +$21.3/bbl move. The implied refining margin compares to the $4.73bn margin driver in the bridge, representing a ~$470mm (+11%) capture above the marker. Adjusting for 3Q26 throughput running ~4% above the YTD average (3,735 vs. 3,598 MBbl/d), we estimate ~$300mm of excess capture remains. Given the sensitivity analysis excludes trading and marketing contribution, we believe the residual reflects XOM's optimization and trading capabilities.

- Decade of countercyclical investments translating to Energy Products earnings. While Energy Products earnings benefited from the macro backdrop, we believe the self-built part of the uplift is . XOM has invested ~$17bn in refining since 2019, including Beaumont where a $2bn expansion completed in 2023 has contributed to a ~40% increase in USGC distillate production since 2019. CFO Hansen put diesel yield ~3.5% above 2019, worth ~$1.5bn of margin in 3Q26 and ~$3.5bn YTD. USGC crude unit utilization ran at 100% (~84% globally), and worldwide throughput rose to 3,735 MBbl/d from 3,562 MBbl/d, led by a +143 MBbl/d recovery in Asia Pacific. Adjusted unit earnings of ~$26/bbl at actual margins reflect the current environment. The more telling trend is constant-margin unit earnings rising from ~$2/bbl in 2024 to ~$4/bbl in 2025 and the ~$6/bbl 2030 plan. Looking ahead, USGC reconfiguration should add ~100 MBbl/d of distillate yield with Baytown underway, and management estimates that brownfield expansions like the follow-on work at Baton Rouge and Beaumont cost roughly half as much as a greenfield build.
- Chemicals give back 2Q26 spike, and miss was macro rather than execution. Chemical Products adjusted earnings fell to $725mm from $1,214mm in 2Q26, the soft spot of the print. North American polyethylene fell to $998/T from $1,454/T, Asia Pacific polyethylene fell to $990/T from $1,148/T, and USGC ethane rose to $180/T from $158/T. By our math, the -$456/T NA PE move run through XOM's +$560mm annual sensitivity per $100/T implies a -$640mm quarterly hit (-$690mm including the other chemical markers). That is in line with the -$640mm margin driver in the bridge. Encouragingly, high-value product volumes added +$120mm on Asia Pacific seasonal demand, and total sales rose to 4,888 kt from 4,471 kt. Adjusted unit earnings of ~$148/T sit below the ~$210/T 2025 constant-margin figure and the ~$285/T 2030 plan, so the segment is earning below mid-cycle. We do not model a 4Q26 margin recovery, and the case for the segment rests on the U.S. ethane feed advantage and high-value product growth.
- Specialty Products is delivering earnings strength carried by tight basestock supply. Basestock supply moves with refinery runs and disruptions, so Specialty benefited from the same tightness that lifted refining. Adjusted earnings rose to $1,283mm from $969mm in 2Q26, driven by a +$460mm margin contribution that more than offset lower high-value product volumes. 3Q26 sales of 1,737 kt compare to 1,784 kt in 2Q26, and YTD sales sit -6% below YTD25. Adjusted unit earnings of ~$739/T compare to ~$305/T for 2025 at constant margins and the ~$460/T 2030 target. That makes Specialty the segment furthest above its normalized level.
- Middle East impact set to continue: Upstream adjusted earnings fell to $7,308mm from $9,189mm in 2Q26, but the sequential decline had little to do with the Middle East. The bridge shows -$960mm from lower prices (U.S. crude realizations fell -$12.76/bbl to $84.82/bbl vs. a -$7.02/bbl drop in WTI) and -$730mm from lower advantaged volumes on accelerated Guyana entitlements and Permian non-op impacts, while the Middle East volume impact was flat sequentially. Total production of 4,496 MBoe/d was essentially flat vs. 4,514 MBoe/d in 2Q26. In the volume walk, +74 MBoe/d of growth was more than offset by -87 MBoe/d of entitlement effects, which management attributed mainly to Guyana, and -5 MBoe/d of divestments. However, YTD Asia-ME gas production of 1,818 MMcf/d sits -44% below YTD25, which is the clearest read on the damage in Qatar. On the call, Woods said UAE production is back near historical levels but sales are being deferred for logistics reasons.

- Permian technology, Guyana, and push for LNG operatorship. XOM reached full-year Permian production of ~1.8 MMBoe/d a little ahead of schedule, and YTD U.S. liquids of 1,622 MBo/d sit +10% above YTD25. We believe the bigger story is the technology rollout. XOM runs 3 automated drilling rigs today and plans to expand them to ~25% of its Permian fleet next year and approximately half by 2028. Its lightweight proppant is now deployed across the basin, and Pioneer synergies have doubled to $4bn per year. CEO Woods sees a line of sight to doubling recovery, though secondary recovery should matter more beyond 2030. In Guyana, Stabroek passed 1bn bbl in 11 years, and Uaru is slated to start up in late 4Q26. At Golden Pass, Train 2 should be substantially complete by December, with Train 3 mechanical completion targeted for mid-2027. We believe the LNG portfolio moves were the most part of the print. The company assumed operatorship at Papua LNG and agreed to raise its working interest to 34%. At the Rovuma in Mozambique, XOM is increasing its operated interest to 50% and exiting its non-operated acreage, and the management team still expects FID by year-end.
- Fortress balance sheet bankrolls the $20bn buyback target for 2027. XOM raised its dividend +4% to $1.07 per share and committed to maintain buybacks at $20bn in 2027 (in line with the 2025 level and 2026 plan). It also cut net debt by more than $9bn to $22.1bn (7.5% net debt to capital and 0.2x net debt/EBITDA). The company returned $9.4bn to shareholders in 3Q26 ($4.3bn of dividends and $5.1bn of buybacks), bringing YTD distributions to $28.0bn. The ~$17.5bn annual dividend run-rate (on 4,079mm shares) plus $20bn of buybacks implies ~$37.5bn of 2027 distributions, which compares to 2026 YTD FCF of $39.0bn. Additionally, management said it is actively working inorganic opportunities, which we view as further optionality given the balance-sheet capacity.
- Estimate revisions. Our model update leans towards refining and away from chemicals. Our 2026/2027 EPS moves to $14.54/$13.78 from $14.11/$13.97, and our 2026/2027 CFPS estimate moves to $20.41/$21.81 from $20.33/$22.42. The revisions reflect higher refining margin assumptions through 1H27, a lower chemicals margin deck, and a ~350 MBoe/d Middle East headwind (assuming no sequential changes in ME impact) in 4Q26. Our model is based on 2026/2027 oil and gas prices of $87.96/$88.97 per bbl and $3.43/$3.00 per Mcf vs. $85.96/$79.86 per bbl and $3.51/$3.24 per Mcf prior. We reiterate our Overweight rating and move our Dec-27 price target to $199 per share (from $186 per share previously) assuming a 6.25% FCF/EV yield on our 2028 estimates.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

- All 'Integrated' companies face the same general risks, including commodity price volatility, infrastructure constraints, oilfield service cost inflation upon accelerating activity, and unexpected geologic irregularities.
- Type curves and proved reserve/resource potential remain underpinned by numerous assumptions subject to uncertainty that could materially change and lead to a deviation from our forecast volumes and cash flows on the downside.
- Continued oil price volatility could impact play economics and ultimately corporate-level cash flow, which could cause the stock to underperform from our expectations.
- Lower margin profile for downstream and chemicals segments could impact cash flows in a negative manner.
- Slower than expected ramp up of new technologies in the E&P segment and delay in start of key projects could have a negative impact on the company's earnings potential.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period.
J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
