Baskets and Thematic Ideas for Higher Rates and a More Differentiated Asia

With rates and energy prices elevated and Asian equity performance increasingly differentiated, we favor earnings-backed structural growth, quality, valuation discipline and selective diversification over broad market beta. Recent AI volatility further increases the importance of distinguishing durable earnings beneficiaries from crowded positioning.

Preferred Factor and Macro Exposures

- Lower Duration: Short Duration and GARP over pure Growth. Higher discount rates increase the value of near-term cash flows and valuation discipline. We prefer Short Duration (GSSZSDUR) and GARP (GSSZGARP) over Long Duration (GSSZLDUR) and pure Growth (GSSZGROW).
- Higher Quality: Resilient balance sheets and margins. Macro volatility and higher borrowing costs increase the value of financial resilience, pricing power and earnings stability. We favor Strong over Weak Balance Sheets (GSSZSBAL vs. GSSZWBAL) and High/Stable over Low/Volatile Margins (GSSZHMGN vs. GSSZLMGN).
- Sustainable Cash Returns: Secure and growing dividends. Secure Dividend Yield (GSSZDIVY) and High Yield with Growth (GSSZDIVG) provide a lower-beta complement to AI-led growth and potential resilience during market rotations. We prefer companies combining dividends and buybacks with strong free cash flow and positive EPS revisions.
- Fundamental Momentum: Revision Winners over Price Momentum. Following the recent reversal in crowded trades, we emphasize fundamental delivery over extrapolation of past returns. We prefer Consensus Revision Winners over Losers (GSSZREVW vs. GSSZREVL), which incorporate earnings and target-price revisions, while Strong over Weak Earnings Revisions (GSSZSERV vs. GSSZWERV) offer a more direct expression of EPS momentum.
- Global and Rate Exposure: Global Cyclicals and Financials over domestic consumption. With monetary policy restrictive and domestic demand relatively soft, we prefer Value within Global Cyclicals (GSSZMSGC) over Domestic Cyclicals (GSSZMSDC) / Consumption (GSSZDOMC). Higher reinvestment yields, capital-market activity and positive wealth effects should also support Banks and selected Rate-Sensitive Financials (GSSZMSFR), while diversifying portfolios away from AI.

Structural Themes

- AI Infrastructure: Favor earnings visibility over crowded positioning. AI remains Asia's principal structural earnings driver. We favor AIGC Semiconductors (GSSZAISM) and AIGC Hardware (GSSZAIHW) across key compute and hardware bottlenecks, where supply constraints and sustained capex provide stronger earnings visibility. Following the recent sell-off, we prefer companies with positive earnings revisions, lower PEG ratios and backlog support over crowded momentum exposures and less-proven application monetization.

- Power Up Asia: Capture the physical-infrastructure bottleneck. Data-center growth, electrification and energy-security investment are increasing demand for generation, grids and power-management infrastructure. We favor Power & Electricity (GSSZPOWE), particularly grid equipment, electrical systems, and power management, alongside Nuclear Power (GSSZNUCL) and selective Environmental & Renewables (GSSZEVMT) beneficiaries. These themes capture the power constraint arising from AI and electrification, with less direct dependence on semiconductor positioning.
- Productive Capex: HALO over selected capital-light exposure. We favor Capital Intensive/HALO companies (GSSZHALO) benefiting from investment in AI infrastructure, power, advanced manufacturing and supply-chain resilience. By contrast, selected Capital Light/LAHO companies (GSSZLAHO) may face greater AI-disruption risk and offer less direct exposure to the current capex cycle.
- Structural Growth, but Catalyst-Dependent: Physical AI, Reindustrialization, Defense and Space. We remain constructive on Physical AI (GSSZAIPH), US Reindustrialization (GSXAUSRE), Aerospace & Defense (GSSZADEF) / Non-Core Defense Suppliers (GSSZDEFS) and the Asia Space Economy (GSSZSPCE). These themes benefit from rising investment in economic security, automation, advanced manufacturing and supply-chain resilience. However, near-term positioning should remain selective and anchored in identifiable catalysts, order conversion and credible earnings delivery.

Market-Specific Themes

- China: Structural policy tailwinds themes, including AI supply chain self-sufficiency and export leaders, 15th FYP, Shareholder Returns, Going Global Leaders.
- Korea: AI hardware and memory, key industrial themes including defense, and shipbuilding. Corporate Governance themes such Holdcos, Preferred Shares, and Treasury share cancellations, along with shareholder returns and K culture.
- Japan: AI ecosystem, cybersecurity, HALO, defense, US reindustrialization and corporate-governance beneficiaries, including companies improving shareholder returns/unwinding cross-shareholdings.
- Taiwan: AI infrastructure and Apple supply chain.
- India: AI enablers, power infrastructure, Government-supported domestic self-sufficiency themes, including Energy Security and Defense.

Macro Slices

Macro slices explain the fundamental drivers to revenues

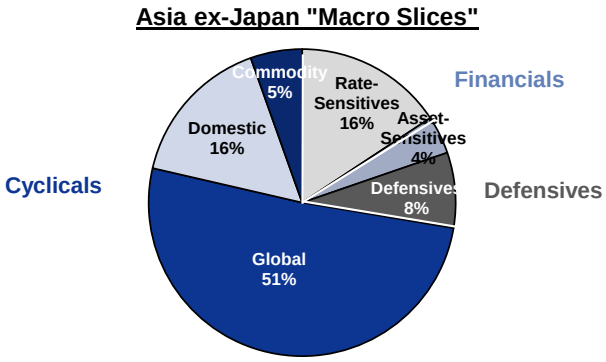

We rebalance our "macro slice" baskets, which comprise our preferred framework for tracking broad macro themes in Asia.

Our macro slice framework divides the market into six segments that each trade a general macro theme. We divided cyclicals into Global cyclicals <GSSZMSGC>, Commodity cyclicals <GSSZMSCC>, and Domestic cyclicals <GSSZMSDC>; financials were divided into Interest-Rate Sensitives <GSSZMSFR> (banks, insurance) and Asset-Sensitives <GSSZMSFA> (real estate, other financials); with Defensives <GSSZMSDF> completing the group.

We selected these slices based on fundamental drivers: Global and Commodity Cyclicals are much more sensitive to global/DM activity; Domestic Cyclicals reflect largely Domestic/Asian activity; Financials are more affected by the domestic policy cycle & general market activities; and Defensives are more domestic and less sensitive to the macro cycle.

Our macro slice baskets consist of 40 large cap stocks within the MXASJ index, with a 10% cap applied to each stock. Stocks are classified into different macro slices based on their GICS market industry classification.

Geographic Exposure

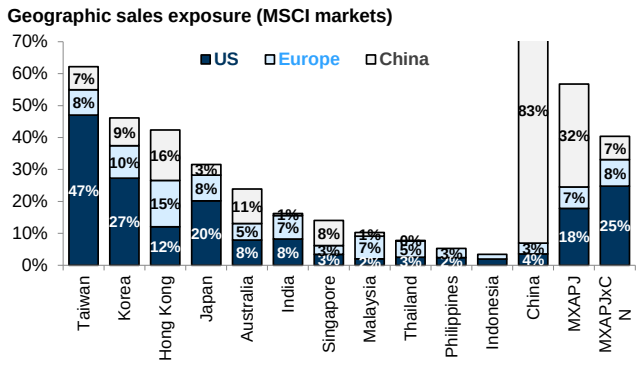

Investing based on the origin of revenues

Our geographic exposure baskets allow investors to monitor and trade Asian stocks based on the origin of their revenues. We rebalance 6 geographic exposure baskets, covering US, Europe, China and Domestic geographies.

- APJ US Sales Exposure basket <GSSZAPUS> consists of 50 APxJ stocks currently with the highest sales exposure to the US; while our APJ US Exporters basket <GSSZUSEX> is a more confined list of stocks which export goods to the US from non-US production sites.
- APJ Europe Sales Exposure basket <GSSZAPEU> consists of 40 APxJ stocks having the highest sales exposure to Europe.
- APJ China Sales Exposure basket <GSSZAPCN> consists of 40 APxJ stocks (excluding Mainland China-based companies) having the highest sales exposure to the Mainland China market.
- APJ International Sales Exposure basket <GSSZINTL> consists of 50 APxJ stocks having the highest sales exposure outside the APxJ region and at least 10% each to the US and Europe.
- APJ Domestic Consumption basket <GSSZDOMC> consists of 50 growing stocks in the Consumer sector with more than 90% sales exposure within domestic economies.

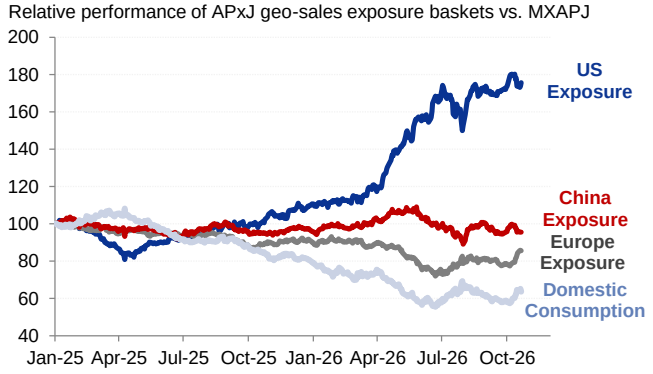

Each exposure basket consists of the top 40/50 APxJ stocks, ranked by the latest reported sales exposure, with free float market caps > US$1bn and 6M ADVT >US$5mn. All baskets are free float market cap weighted, adjusted (multiplied) by geographic sales exposure, with a 10% cap applied.

High vs. Low Sharpe Ratio (GSSZHSHR) vs. (GSSZLSHR)

Key Criteria: Top 50 APxJ stocks having the highest/lowest historical and prospective Sharpe ratios in the High/Low Sharpe Ratio baskets; stocks are selected based on a weighted quartile rank of the metrics relative to their market peers. Stocks with past 3M performance within the bottom/top quartile (for the High/Low Sharpe ratio baskets respectively) are excluded due to possible delays in consensus target price updates post a sharp price movement that may distort the prospective returns.

Investor Positioning

Identifying investors' favorite and least popular stocks
Our positioning baskets aim to help investors gauge: 1) sell-side preferences, 2) buy-side positioning, and 3) the most popular long/short names. We rebalance six sets of positioning baskets in this report.

- Asia 'VIP' (Very Important Positions) <GSSZAVIP> consists of the 30 most popular regional stocks, ranked by how frequently they appear among the top holdings of Asian and EM mutual funds.
- China 'VIP' baskets for A-shares <GSCNAVIP> and Offshore stocks <GSCNHVIP> aim to capture the most popular stocks among investors in the China equity universe. Each basket consists of 30 stocks, selected using market-specific positioning criteria.
- Mutual Fund Overweight vs. Underweight baskets <GSSZMFOW> vs. <GSSZMFUW> consist of 50 Asia ex-Japan stocks with the largest benchmark-relative overweight or underweight positions among major EM/AEJ mutual funds. The baskets provide a gauge of in-favor and out-of-favor stocks, while changes in positioning over time can indicate shifts in mutual fund preferences. For further details, please refer to our latest mutual fund positioning and fund flows reports.
- Consensus Top Buy vs. Sell baskets <GSSZTOPB> vs. <GSSZTOPS> aim to capture sell-side preferences across markets. Historically, the long/short performance of these baskets has tracked mutual funds' benchmark-relative performance reasonably well, potentially providing a higher-frequency proxy for buy-side performance.
- Most Shorted Stocks <GSSZSHOR> captures stocks with elevated short-selling activity and may help identify potential trading opportunities, including short squeezes during market rebounds or sudden risk-on periods. Performance rotations tend to occur when market short ratios reach extreme levels.
- Asia Retail 'Favorite' <GSSZRFAV> captures stocks popular among retail investors, based on high and rising retail/non-institutional ownership, strong retail/non-institutional flows, and sharp increases in turnover velocity. Historically, these stocks have tended to outperform during periods of surging retail activity.

Note: Data as of September 2026. For calculating OW/UW, MSCI EM is used as benchmark for EM-focused funds and MXAPJ/MXASJ for Asian-focused funds. Holdings include both primary and secondary listings of the stocks (e.g. domesitc listings, ADRs, GDRs).

How to read the table: Using MediaTek as an example, 252 out of top 350 EM and Asian funds own MediaTek. Average weight in these funds is 2.6%, which is 81bp OW vs. their respective MSCI benchmarks. Blended OW/UW is calculated as AUM weighted OW/UW in EM and Asian funds.

Note: Data as of September 2026. For calculating OW/UW, MSCI EM is used as benchmark for EM-focused funds and MXAPJ/MXASJ for Asian-focused funds. Holdings include both primary and secondary listings of the stocks (e.g. domesitc listings, ADRs, GDRs).

How to read the table: Using TSMC as an example, 302 out of top 350 EM and Asian funds own TSMC. Average weight in these funds is 12.4%, which is 336bp UW vs. their respective MSCI benchmarks. Blended OW/UW is calculated as AUM weighted OW/UW in EM and Asian funds.

Power Up Asia (GSSZPOWU)

Our Power Up Asia (GSSZPOWU) basket includes three sub-baskets: Nuclear Power, Environmental & Renewables, and Power & Electricity, designed to capture the accelerating global electricity demand driven by AI. For more analysis and basket details, please see Asia Strategy Baskets: Assessing AI-Powered Investment Opportunities in Asia, September 4, 2025.

Criteria for Power Up Asia Baskets and Business Sub-Categories:

(1) Nuclear Power (GSSZNUCL): Companies across the nuclear power value chain

Universe: Stocks from China, Japan, Korea, and Australia with market cap > US$500mn and 6M ADVT > US$3mn

- Nuclear Fuel Cycle: Uranium mining, exploration, and enrichment services
- Reactor Infrastructure: Nuclear plant EPC, equipment, maintenance, and R&D (we note that while nuclear has become a meaningful earnings driver, some of these companies have diversified operations, which may dilute their nuclear exposure)
- Power Generation: Nuclear power plant operators

(2) Environmental & Renewables (GSSZEVMT): Covers a broad spectrum of green/clean energy and environmental technologies

Universe: Stocks from China, Japan, India, Korea, and Taiwan with market cap > US$500mn (or > US$3bn for China) and 6M ADVT > US$3mn (or > US$25mn for China)

- Clean Energy Engineering: Renewable energy components, equipment, and machinery (e.g. grid, solar PV, wind turbines), and EPC services
- Green Power Generation: Solar, wind, hydro, biomass, and geothermal
- Energy Storage: Manufacturing and engineering of energy storage and battery systems, including raw materials like lithium

(3) Power & Electricity (GSSZPOWE): Covers the broader electricity ecosystem, excluding those classified under the Nuclear Power and Renewables baskets

Universe: Stocks from China, Japan, India, Korea, and Taiwan with market cap > US$500mn (or > US$3bn for China) and 6M ADVT > US$3mn (or > US$25mn for China)

- Electrical Equipment: Transformers, generators, wires & cable, switch gear, motor, grid infrastructure
- Power Infrastructure: Power plant construction, energy distribution, grid operators, power trading entities
- Power Generation: Power plant operators (diversified energy sources), excluding those with majority exposure to nuclear, renewables, or coal (except in India, where coal power capacity is expected to increase)

Weighting Methodology: Based on free float market cap and 6M ADVT, with a 25% adjustment factor applied to China A shares. Max/min weights of 8%/1% are applied to the Nuclear basket, and 5%/0.5% to the Renewables and Power & Electricity baskets.

Aerospace & Defense (GSSZADEF) & Non-Core Defense Suppliers (GSSZDEFS)

Our Asia Aerospace & Defense (GSSZADEF) and Non-Core Defense Suppliers (GSSZDEFS) baskets consist of 50 and 40 APxJ stocks, respectively, that may potentially benefit from increased government defense spending and could outperform in a heightened global geopolitical risk environment. For more analysis and basket details, please see Asia Strategy Baskets: The Rise of Defense for details.

- APJ Aerospace & Defense: This basket includes stocks primarily in the Aerospace and Defense industry (based on GICS, Bloomberg, FactSet, and ICE classifications). These companies are typically involved in the manufacturing, production, and distribution of aerospace and defense equipment, parts, products, and systems for both civil and military use.
- APJ Non-Core Defense Suppliers: This basket comprises stocks classified outside the Aerospace and Defense industry but could benefit from higher defense spending due to their involvement in the defense supply chain, including raw materials, machinery, equipment, software systems, chips, and construction & engineering.

  The stocks in both baskets have a positive return correlation with Global Geopolitical Risk (GPR) index movement (rolling 5D/10D) since 2022.

Universe: APxJ stocks with listed market caps >US$300mn and 6M ADVT >US$3mn.

Weighting: Average free float caps and 6M ADVT weighted, with a 25% adjustment factor applied to China A. Maximum/minimum stock weights are capped at 5%/0.5% for each basket. For Non-Core Defense Suppliers, we further adjust the weight based on estimated defense exposure.

Exclusion: We exclude entities on the Non-SDN Chinese Military-Industrial Complex Companies List from our baskets.
