Global Data Watch: Asia

Early September data validates the PMIs

Asia: Early September data validates the PMIs

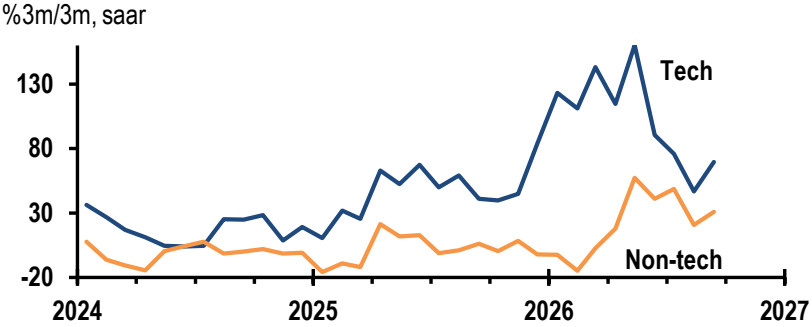

We were inclined to look through the contraction in Asian August IP both because (i) it was underpinned by country-specific idiosyncrasies (heavy holiday-calendar in Korea, temporary production suspensions in Japan); and (ii) the September PMIs surged to a five-year high. The early activity in September appears to be validating that assessment, with exports posting strong gains in both Korea and Taiwan, across the tech and non-tech sectors, in September. Even though tech exports have corrected from their highs, they still remain very elevated in North Asia, underpinned both by strong price effects in Korea but also strong volume growth in Taiwan. Importantly, even non-tech exports have picked up in 2026 and are now running at a 30% annualized pace across Taiwan and Korea. The strengthening of non-tech exports as well as domestic investment suggests a broadening of demand drivers in the tech economies.

Central bank tightening broadens

As growth remains robust across the region, central banks are increasingly turning their attention to managing inflation pressures. This week the RBI joined the band of hikers, by hiking 25 bps as we had expected. The MPC also changed its stance from "neutral" to "calibrated tightening." Ordinarily this should have be seen as a hawkish pivot, but the Governor emphasized that "calibrated" reflects a "milder form of tightening" and is contingent on underlying inflation becoming more generalized. This is consistent with the shallow cycle in our baseline – with another 25 bps hike penciled in for December – but is at odds with another 100 bps of hiking the market has penciled in. The difference is that markets believe the RBI will be forced to hike to defend the depreciating currency, while we believe this RBI regime will continue to engage in the "separability principle" – using rates to focus on domestic growth-inflation dynamics and capital flow and regulatory measures to stem Rupee pressures – as they have done for almost two years.

Next week we expect the Monetary Authority of Singapore to deliver a final 25bp increase in the FX policy slope to a modestly restrictive 1.50%, as inflation remains elevated and growth is still well above trend. However, recent CPI undershoot and larger-than-anticipated cuts to electricity and gas tariffs in 4Q26 skews the risk bias slightly more toward a pause than a larger 50bp move.

Meanwhile, inflation prints this week have varying implications for monetary policy. In the Philippines, both headline and core posted strong upside surprises, with headline CPI coming in at 7.2%oya in September at the upper end of the BSP's forecast range (6.4-7.4%). Core inflation also picked up significantly from 4.1%oya to 4.7%oya. This reinforces our call for the BSP to raise its policy rate by another 25bp to 5.25% later this month, and adds upside risks to our terminal rate assumption of 5.5% in this cycle.

In Thailand, headline CPI rose by less than expected to 2.8%oya in September, from 2.5% in August, as higher fuel prices were offset by lower electricity costs. This reinforces our view that the BoT will be patient for now but we retain our out-of-consensus forecast of three 25bp hikes to 1.75%, beginning in 1Q27. The inflation target breach should arrive in October, instead of September, as the impact of electricity tariff cuts was larger than expected.

The only economy not expected to hike in our baseline is Taiwan. To be sure, after cooling more sharply than expected in August, Taiwan's September CPI surprised to the upside, driven primarily by food and energy prices, but core inflation (+ 0.2 %m/m, sa) remained broadly in line with expectations. With the CBC signaling some tolerance for near-term inflation overshoot, our baseline continues to be a hold. But key swing factors include El Niño-related food-price risks, energy, electricity tariff and subsidy decisions and fiscal outlook.

China: RMB550bn strengthens the fiscal floor

China enters 4Q with resilient exports and stronger fiscal support, but no broad reflation. Port data point to stronger shipments and we expect exports to rise 28% oya, against 26% for imports, leaving the trade surplus near US$118.5bn.

Importantly, the fiscal floor is strengthening. Government bond issuance accelerated to RMB1.53trn in September, lifting year-to-date progress to 76% of the annual target and narrowing the shortfall from 11.2ppts to 8.3ppts. The MOF has also authorized the use of RMB550bn in unused local-government debt limits: RMB300bn of general debt for county and district budgets and RMB250bn of special debt for regions with genuine fourth-quarter project-funding needs, tilted toward major economic provinces. Funding will prioritize ongoing projects, while new investment will focus on the "six networks" and other key areas. Together with the RMB800bn policy-bank tool and expanded PSL support, including a 25bp rate cut, the additional quota should support investment into year-end and early 2027, although the impulse will depend on the pace of issuance, disbursement and project [illegible]ion.

The PBOC's RMB statement reinforces this assessment. It rejected both competitive devaluation and forced revaluation, reaffirmed two-way flexibility and attributed China's surplus to industrial competitiveness rather than currency weakness. Exchange-rate adjustment offers limited relief from external pressure as EU–China negotiations focus on market access, critical supplies and fast-growing Chinese exports. In next week's data, resilient trade and faster fiscal deployment should support growth, while higher oil, metals and petrochemical costs are expected to lift PPI to 4.3%oya. Weak household demand should limit pass-through, leaving CPI near 0.9%. The policy mix can support growth, but it does not yet signal broad reflation.

Research Notes

Japan: Reflation redefined? From monetary to fiscal

- The administration has begun to declare an end to reflation, while maintaining a proactive fiscal stance
- The FY27 initial requests risk expansion due to higher debt-service costs and investment spending
- Nominal growth should lift revenues, but continued expansion would increase reliance on JGB issuance
- In an inflationary backdrop, this policy likely ends in fiscal dominance or rate-driven fiscal constraints

Click here for full report

Malaysia: Wait, it's not what it looks like

- Malaysia's current account surplus has strengthened much less than surging customs data would suggest…
- … with the latter being inflated by surging trade flows under tech contract manufacturing arrangements
- Only a fraction of trade surpluses arising from contract manufacturing reflect domestic value-add…
- … limiting the boost to the current account, GDP, and FX inflows
- Even where tech exports create domestic value-add, a large share accrues to foreign-owned firms…
- … resulting in larger income outflows that have further offset the tech export windfall

Data Watches

Japan:

- Takaichi denies reflationary policy stance, while keeping expansionary fiscal policy
- Fiscal reflation may drive BoJ hikes, ending in fiscal dominance or fiscal limits

Disclosures

Analyst Certification: The Research Analyst(s) denoted by an "AC" on the cover of this report certifies (or, where multiple Research Analysts are primarily responsible for this report, the Research Analyst denoted by an "AC" on the cover or within the document individually certifies, with respect to each security or issuer that the Research Analyst covers in this research) that: (1) all of the views expressed in this report accurately reflect the Research Analyst's personal views about any and all of the subject securities or issuers; and (2) no part of any of the Research Analyst's compensation was, is, or will be directly or indirectly related to the specific recommendations or views expressed by the Research Analyst(s) in this report. For all Korea-based Research Analysts listed on the front cover, if applicable, they also certify, as per KOFIA requirements, that the Research Analyst's analysis was made in good faith and that the views reflect the Research Analyst's own opinion, without undue influence or intervention.

All authors named within this report are Research Analysts who produce independent research unless otherwise specified. In Europe, Sector Specialists (Sales and Trading) may be shown on this report as contacts but are not authors of the report or part of the Research Department.

Research excerpts: This material may include excerpts from previously published reports. For access to the full reports, including analyst certification and important disclosures, please contact your sales representative or the covering analyst's team, or visit https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.

Important Disclosures

Company-Specific Disclosures: Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables (if applicable), are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Morgan–covered companies, and certain non-covered companies, by visiting https://www.jpmm.com/research/disclosures, calling 1-800-477-0406, or e-mailing research.disclosure.inquiries@jpmorgan.com with your request.

History of Investment Recommendations:
A history of J.P. Morgan investment recommendations disseminated during the preceding 12 months can be accessed on the Research & Commentary page of http://www.jpmorganmarkets.com where you can also search by analyst name, sector or financial instrument.

Explanation of Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Ratings System and Valuation & Methodology:
Ratings System: J.P. Morgan uses the following issuer portfolio weightings for Emerging Markets Sovereign Research: Overweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to outperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns); Marketweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to perform in line with the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns); and Underweight (over the next three months, the recommended risk position is expected to underperform the relevant index, sector, or benchmark credit returns). NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating for this security because of either legal, regulatory or policy reasons or because of lack of a sufficient fundamental basis. The previous rating no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. NC is Not Covered. An NC designation is not a rating or a recommendation. Recommendations will be at the issuer level, and an issuer recommendation applies to all of the index-eligible bonds at the same level for the issuer. When we change the issuer-level rating, we are changing the rating for all of the issues covered, unless otherwise specified. Ratings for quasi-sovereign issuers in the EMBIG may differ from the ratings provided in EM corporate coverage.

Valuation & Methodology: For J.P. Morgan's Emerging Markets Sovereign Research, we assign a rating to each sovereign issuer (Overweight, Marketweight or Underweight) based on our view of whether the combination of the issuer's fundamentals, market technicals, and the relative value of its securities will cause it to outperform, perform in line with, or underperform the credit returns of the EMBIGD index over the next three months. Our view of an issuer's fundamentals includes our opinion of whether the issuer is becoming more or less able to service its debt obligations when they become due and payable, as well as whether its willingness to service debt obligations is increasing or decreasing.

J.P. Morgan Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Ratings Distribution, as of October 3, 2026

| | Overweight (buy) | Marketweight (hold) | Underweight (sell) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Universe* | 9% | 84% | 7% |
| IB clients | 83% | 89% | 100% |

Please note that the percentages may not add to 100% because of rounding.
*Percentage of subject issuers within each of the "Overweight, "Marketweight" and "Underweight" categories for which J.P. Morgan has provided investment banking services within the previous 12 months.
For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution rules only, our Overweight rating falls into a buy rating category; our Marketweight rating falls into a hold rating category; and our Underweight rating falls into a sell rating category. The Emerging Markets Sovereign Research Rating Distribution is at the issuer level. Issuers with an NR or an NC designation are not included in the table above. This information is current as of the end of the most recent calendar quarter.
